Borch uses a patented lamination process to cross the folds of the map, making it easier to read and even easier to refold. The tough but non-toxic lamination material degrades to oxygen and water in a landfill environment. Before then, the map is practically indestructible in your backpack or suit coat pocket, and can even be written on temporarily with dry-erase markers.

The map is very helpful for a tourist, with all major attractions included and highlighted on the map. Inserts are provided for all major sightseeing areas like Prague Castle, Old Town etc. Overlay-ed metro stops and numbered tram lines are especially helpful. Lamination makes it very durable and water proof, we used it under the rain for several days with no damage to the map.

We travel to Europe every year and this is the hardest map to work with that I have ever found. It is such small print and it doesn't show the streets easily. Someone else had the same opinion in a review but I thought I could do better when the map came. Not so. I would recommend finding another city map of Prague.

This will not replace a Streetwise map. Described as an English version, there is very little English, making it difficult, if not impossible, to read. The format is much larger, too. I returned it.

A good, practical city map with public transportation sub-maps. Easy to read and if you're smart enough to buy a chinagraph pencil you can mark the laminated map and then erase the markings. I've passed and a couple others to a relative who did almost the same trip (Vienna, Budapest & Prague) and she found them helpful too.

The map arrived on time and was as advertised. For traveling, laminated maps are essential.

I've used other maps from this series before, which all appear to be reprints from the Insight map series. They are pretty decent maps with excellent reference features, including hospitals, police stations, market places, etc. I don't travel anywhere without this company's maps. Although it should be noted that the water resistant coating doesn't make it amenable to marking, even with a Sharpie pen. . .

Worked ok, did not use much.

It is a little large, but better too big than too small. Seems accurate with tram routes and much more.
