The best book I've purchased in a very long time. We've already completed 2 dates, and my daughter keeps asking for more. Trying to take time in between to lengthen the experience. Truly, will change your relationship with your daughter in addition to the amazing life lesson she will be learning.

This is a great resource for moms everywhere. My 10 year old daughter and I are working through this together now. It is building our relationship and helping her to see herself as the gift of God she is. I would recommend for every family. I plan to do this again for my other daughter when she is old enough.

I purchased this to read for my 13 year old. I love the lessons and talks about inner beauty, and teaching you are More. This is something we should be teaching our daughters in a world that teaches them outer beauty is everything. This book says for tweens and teens but depending on your daughter I really think this needs to start at the tween age. I still used it but had to tweek it a she was a little past most of this, and this would have been a bit corny for her. But it is a great book.

Love these ideas and tips. Actually scheduling a mother-daughter tea from one of the suggestions. Looking forward to doing these things with my daughter!

Great book for developing and creating a bond with your littles.....great for connecting early on creating trust and allowing girls to open up to mom. Values are so important these days its up to us moms to ensure the values are taught at home.

Dannah pairs biblical principles with fun activities for today's pre-teen girls and their moms. Great activities! We are doing the book as a small group with moms and their daughters. Not only are the moms connecting with each other, the girls are developing fellowship, and most importantly, the mom/daughter relationships are being strengthened in a Godly way.

Extremely well done and appropriate for young children. My daughter is almost 7 and we will be reading this with her soon.

I've read through this book and cannot wait to go on these dates with my daughter! I think this is just what our daughters need in learning about their bodies and starting to talk about the things related to puberty.
