Give All To Love: A Young Mother's Battle With Breast Cancer

Synopsis

In October 2013, Meg Sager was 32 years old, the happily married mother of a 3-year-old daughter with her second child on the way. She was a dedicated middle-school teacher who had recently earned a Master's Degree and had plans for going back to school again once her husband completed the Ph.D. program he had just begun. It was a hopeful time. When she first noticed the tender lump in her breast, she assumed it was related to her pregnancy. Even so, she had it checked out and soon got the diagnosis that would change her life: she had triple-negative breast cancer, a particularly aggressive form of the disease. Almost immediately after being diagnosed, she began sharing her experiences on her blog, keeping readers informed about every phase of her battle with cancer. At times heart-breaking, Meg's story is also touching, funny, informative, and inspiring as readers are able to see her strength and dedication, her devotion to her family, her courage and her fears. It is a portrait of grace under pressure.

Customer Reviews

It was heartbreaking to follow Meg's battle - especially knowing that in the end she lost her fight with cancer. The positive message and strength shown through her blog posts is inspirational. Through her words, she left a legacy that her family can be proud of and others can aspire to.

What a courageous woman Meg was...a true inspiration for woman fighting breast cancer.

Amazing story and truly inspired...heartbreaking

Beautiful

Meg will always be in our hearts. This is an amazing account, heartbreaking, but amazing.

As a mother who's daughter has been diagnosed with triple neg inflammatory bc, this was heartbreaking....but lovely to see her having fought the good fight
