Every Living Thing: All Creatures Great And Small Book 5

Synopsis

Further veterinary tales from the Yorkshire Dales The fifth volume of memoirs from the author who inspired the BBC series All Creatures Great and Small During his decades spent as a country vet in Yorkshire, James Herriot has seen huge advances in medical science, technological leaps, and a world irrevocably changed by war. Yet some things have always stayed the same - gruff farmers, hypochondriac pet owners, and animals that never do quite what you expect them to. From a green young man in his first job in the 1930s, to an experienced veterinary surgeon, married with two children, James has spent his entire career among the people and animals of Darrowby. And there's nowhere else he'd rather be. Since they were first published, James Herriot's memoirs have sold millions of copies and entranced generations of animal lovers. Charming, funny and touching, Every Living Thing is a heart-warming story of determination, love and companionship from one of Britain's best-loved authors.

Customer Reviews

Fantastic as always, I have read the majority of this brilliant writer and his life as a vet in some of the most demanding conditions one could imagine. The subtle humour he adds to his stories are just hilarious and I have never been disappointed with any of his numerous books I have read. If you haven't ever read one of his books, do yourself a favour and you will find that you can picture yourself there with him in the freezing stables in the middle of the night trying to help a cow give birth, and many other stories, some sad, but most just wonderfully human if that make sense. He paints a beautiful scenery of the beautiful green, mountainous land, it is writing at it's best.

As his son said, his books are more about people than they are about animals, as such are touching, humorous and thoughtful.
